PARIS, Oct. 1.—A compromise measure, known as the "franchise act," which provides for a new clause in price fixing decrees, by a vote of 251 to 237.

With the momentous legislation being only the first step of the chamber of deputies, Premier Jean Bonnet announced he would leave Paris late tonight on a day's journey to Geneva. This he indicated his confidence that the government's legislative difficulties were ended.

The chamber finance committee accepted the compromise definitively after the senate had passed the substitute measure without a record vote. It provides for restoration of the currency, but provides a check on government power to control price increases.

LEAGUE SEEKS $1.15 WHEAT IN CROP OF 1936

Government Intends To Throw Grain Into Speculators' Lap

SASKATOON, Oct. 1.—Proposals for Canadian wheat policy changes, involving a retroactive $1.15 minimum price on the 1936 crop and restoration of power to set wheat prices, received overwhelming support from 244 registered delegates from about 55 northern Saskatchewan points here at a conference of the Children's Wheat Board and Price League yesterday.

The meeting was conducted on a non-political basis, and was featured by fiery outbursts of speakers who felt the Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, should have arranged to attend the meeting during his visit to Saskatchewan.

Generally the memorandum asked the Wheat Board to set the minimum price for wheat at $1.15 per bushel, and to allow the government to set the price in line with world wheat statistics.

M. J. Caldwell, M.P., Rosemont, Sask., said that everything in the government's program was going to get out of the wheat market and leave the producers to the speculative vultures. The government, he averred, was attempting to let events take their course.

With nations bargaining with one another, he declared Canada could not afford to allow one of her great commodities to be left to the mercy of speculative manipulation.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 1.—A new X-ray tube which makes pictures of the bones and organs of the body so clear that old X-ray pictures appear like the blurred work of a novice was shown today before the American Roentgen Ray Society.

Described as a "rotating anode" type, the development was hailed by physicians as one of the outstanding contributions of the present X-ray meeting. The tube, which is about the size of a small X-ray tube, is made of a special alloy and is said to have a life of 10,000 hours.

Out in Front With 1937 General Electric Radio

FORTUNE SPENT IN RESEARCH BY GEN'L ELECTRIC

Produces For Radio Industrials: Developments

General Electric has been prominently and continuously identified with the radio industry for the past 20 years. During these years General Electric has spent millions of dollars for radio research and has produced for radio such indispensable developments as: tuned radio-frequency amplification—the perfection of high vacuum for radio tubes—the cone loudspeaker—world wide broadcasting—short-wave pioneering—high-powered transmission and countless others.

Thus, the experience of 20 years' close identification with the radio has enabled General Electric to develop and perfect the new 1937 line of General Electric radios, which rank with the truly great achievements of the "House of Magic."

Their reception is an nearly perfect as modern scientific research and engineering skill can make it. Probably most important is the unbelievable stability of performance which underlies every feature of the new G-E sets. Every improvement—every new feature—every adjustment, no matter how obscure, contributes to stability in the life and performance of the set.

METAL TUBES
Unquestionably, the most outstanding feature of the new General Electric sets is the metal tube—a development of the G-E research laboratories—and so important that a completely new radio has been built around it.

These metal tubes are no superior that they need only half the size of glass tubes. They provide greater stability of performance, hence better operating efficiency during the life of the set. They also have silenced forever the annoying crackle that comes through the loudspeaker as a result of loose shield cans, because the metal tube requires no outside shield.

Because it is smaller, and made of steel, the working parts of the tube can be built very close to the base, thereby shortening the wire leads within the tube and providing better control of the high frequencies, or short-wave signals.

Thus, too, the lead wires, within the tube, are more widely separated, a highly desirable feature in reception. There can be no leakage of air or gases with these metal tubes, because they are hermetically sealed-in.

TONE EQUALIZER
Contributing to the overall enjoyment of performance of the G-E radio is the new type projection-welded, electrodynamic speaker.

Gentlemen: Re: Radio.
About eleven months ago, I purchased a G.E. 10-8 ten (metal) tube console with tuning tube 855. I was so taken with the tone and sensitivity and selectivity of the set, I wrote to you, telling you what a fine job I thought it was.

My first appreciation has not dimmed. I still think it is that set after using it constantly for nearly a year. I really use it and believe my experience will be of interest to you. It is in operation 10 or more hours a day, which should be a real test.

I think you might be interested in knowing what I think of it. I have never had a moment's trouble and at all times and in all conditions it has furnished my belief that your radios are the best commercial D.X. getters there are. I have heard of the competitive same size jobs and the tone of my A-10-8 is still away ahead, in my opinion.

After the many hours of operation I had my set gone over for the Fall season. I needed one metal tube, with one other doubtful, I am, therefore, firmly convinced that the metal tubes can "take it" and boy, how they can hand it out. As these are a relatively new product, I am pleased to be able to tell you that, although they have out in long hours of use each day, they have come through 100%, insofar as my personal experience goes.

I am pleased to be able to still think the set equal to my first enthusiastic report to your Company.

Yours sincerely,
H. L. RAY.

SPAIN CHARGES HITLER, ITALY IN GUN SUPPLY

Envoy Also Declares Men Were Sent From Germany

GENEVA, Oct. 1.—The Spanish delegation to the League of Nations last night published documents charging Italy, Germany and Portugal with furnishing arms to the Spanish insurgents in violation of the European non-intervention pact.

The documents contained letters from Madrid to France, Italy, Germany and Portugal denouncing the "hands-off" policy as a blockade against the "legitimate Spanish government."

A note, the documents said, was sent by the Madrid government to all signatory nations of the non-intervention accord declaring that if the insurgents had not received arms from Germany and Italy they would have been "crushed at the outset."

Manitoba Paper Official Killed

WINNIPEG, Oct. 1.—W. George Harbottle, 48, assistant treasurer and accountant with the Manitoba Paper company at Pine Falls, Man., was killed instantly last night when his automobile was in collision with a motor truck.

Suit Dismissed

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—John Barrymore's suit against his former business manager, Henry Holcher, for an accounting was dismissed today by agreement of the lawyers, who said it had been settled out of court.

MOOSE ORDER
MARKS 25TH
ANNIVERSARY450 Members and Guests
Celebrate Birthday Of Edmonton Lodge

More than 450 members and guests of the Local Order of Moose packed the Moose Temple Wednesday evening to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Edmonton lodge No. 722.

Colorful pageantry marked the opening ceremonies of the session which was featured with a banquet and dance. Dictator E. J. Thompson, secretary of the Edmonton lodge and principal speaker of the evening. He told of the organization of the lodge by J. E. Davis, in 1911, and of the wonderful development and work done by the Moose members during the last 25 years. "In 1911, the year of our birth, this organization which now has an enrolled membership of 150,000, consisted of a group of roamer campers, with two lodges. Through the hard work of our organizers and these members, we have come on magnificently in the course of years."

A vivid picture of the organization and progress of the Local Order of Moose was portrayed by E. J. Thompson, principal speaker of the evening. He told of the organization of the lodge by J. E. Davis, in 1911, and of the wonderful development and work done by the Moose members during the last 25 years. "In 1911, the year of our birth, this organization which now has an enrolled membership of 150,000, consisted of a group of roamer campers, with two lodges. Through the hard work of our organizers and these members, we have come on magnificently in the course of years."

The speaker pointed out that $7,000,000 was being spent annually by Moose lodges throughout the world in the maintenance of hospitals for aged people and training schools for children.

Other speakers were: Brother W. Terry, Mrs. F. H. Hootch, Dr. J. P. Johnson and Dr. S. Wright. Miss M. Keeler, E. D. Leggett, Miss M. Clarke, Master K. Quinn and L. Peters, and H. G. Turner entertained.

CANADA NOW
AT '26 LEVEL

GENEVA, Oct. 1.—Economic Canada has now recovered to the general level of 1926, which is regarded as the average postwar level.

The world economic survey for 1935-6 prepared by League of Nations experts reaches this conclusion as it cites indices of Canada's recovery.

"Canada," the review says, "aided by recovery in the United States, by some credit expansion within the Dominion, by a better world market for wheat, by increasing gold production and by greater demands for non-ferrous metals, experienced further considerable recovery in 1935."

CATTLE TESTS AT THIS END, GARDINER AIM

Minister Would Avoid Rejection at Ports in Britain

SASKATOON, Oct. 1.—Plans developed in co-operation with the British ministry of agriculture to avoid rejection of Canadian cattle at British ports by inspection in Canada and methods adopted to that market were outlined by the Hon. J. G. Gardiner, federal minister of agriculture here last night.

The gathering was sponsored by the Saskatoon Board of Trade for those attending the Saskatoon feeder show and sale.

Calling attention to the fact that discussion of agricultural products in Canada had tended to center on wheat, Mr. Gardiner pointed out that livestock and livestock products produced more of Canada's wealth than did wheat and that the livestock men might therefore consider themselves the most important section of Canadian agriculture.

When one talked in Great Britain of Canada as a source of supply for beef, the question of restrictions of supply was brought up, he said.

40 Picked Students Finish Special Traffic Training in Edmonton

Young Patrolmen Show Great Aptitude—Course Will Be Repeated

Nearly a picked group of 40 students, who have completed a special course of training under the City of Edmonton Traffic Patrols, were equipped to handle traffic problems and aid in reducing automobile accidents.

The young patrolmen, selected from some school children, attended lectures and classes conducted by the Edmonton City Police Traffic School. Instructors were so pleased with the results of the course that the course will be repeated at the beginning of every school year.

Study was arranged by Chief Traffic Officer, Ernie Porter, in command during the absence of Sergeant Dan Fraser, head of the traffic squad, who is convalescing from a recent illness. He was assisted by traffic constables, Robert Hughes, Sam Kennedy and A. W. Patterson.

Claiming that the course was one of the most significant and far-reaching developments in the whole field of traffic safety, Porter said: "Automobile industry will continue to build the safest cars possible. But neither the safest roads in the world nor the safest cars can solve the problem of highway safety without good enforcement, backed by a broad education program designed to obtain the maximum voluntary compliance with the reasonable rules of the game."

The youthful patrolmen were taught scientific methods of testing drivers and diplomatic handling of traffic by officers. The method of traffic law enforcement, the best means of controlling traffic on streets and highways and the traffic problems of individual localities.

Other subjects studied included the study of accident causes, the proper driving of highway as an aid to safe driving and the up-to-date methods of investigating and recording automobile accidents.

Most of the students selected are members of Boy Scout troops in the city and will attend school in their uniforms.

Crippled Boy To Help Pals

Gallant Little Bobby Gay, who lost both legs when he crawled under a freight train, is now making a plan to help other kids and make them happy. He will go to school in September to seek the way of bringing happiness and help to the kids he met while in hospital.

WINNIPEG IN NEED HOUSES GRAY CLAIMS

Manitoba Capital Alderman Boosts Construction on Visit Here

Declaring that the housing situation in Winnipeg was receiving the careful attention of the city council, Alderman M. A. Gray, chairman of the health committee and vice-chairman of the unemployment relief committee of the Winnipeg city council, intimated that something drastic would have to be done to alleviate the distress caused by a shortage of dwellings.

At present in Winnipeg there are only 400 homes or 14% of the total housing capacity of the city, vacant. You can appreciate therefore the grave overloading now prevailing in the city. As a matter of fact, most of these vacant houses require repairs on an extensive scale, so that there are only 25% of habitable homes now available for tenancy.

"In the past four years there have been no more than 111 new homes built against an increase of 10,000 in the city's population. In other words, there have been during this period 87 marriages for every new home."

The veteran legislator said that only the placement of 700 families in the city as a result of the "back-to-the-front" movement had added in keeping the situation from becoming even worse.

He added that every member of the city council was aware of the critical situation, and was eager to inaugurate measures that would cope adequately with the problem.

Alderman Gray, who is western Canada manager for Gray, America Line Inc., is in Edmonton on a brief business trip.

Rails To Do
Heavy Hauls
Belief that the railways would continue to predominate as the chief means of transport in the movement of mine products was expressed by Major G. C. O'Malley, Montreal, development commissioner in the natural resources department of the Canadian Pacific railway at a luncheon Wednesday.

He said the railways had a great interest in the mining industry, due to the heavy tonnages to be handled as freight.

The luncheon, held in the grill of the Macdonald hotel, was attended by about 150 delegates. J. A. Richards, of the provincial mines branch, was chairman.

Other speakers were J. E. Carleton, Montreal, secretary of the Institute; Prof. John Turnbull, of the University of British Columbia, Vancouver; Dr. A. W. G. Wilson, director of the statistics department in the mines branch at Ottawa; and George Murray, metallurgist of the Canadian Mining and Smelting company at Trail, B.C.

Abasand Plans
Big Separator

Construction of a 3,000 barrel capacity separator plant will be constructed at McMurtry by the Abasand Mills, according to A. J. Smith, Kansas City, president of the company who is a visitor here attending the Canadian Mining and Metallurgy convention.

Work will be proceeded with this fall on a cable way for use in removing ore and mining of sand. This plant will have a capacity of 250 tons daily. Another unit of the plant scheduled for building in the fall is a 100 barrel batch mill refinery.

Operations at the plant will be carried through the winter. Extension of the statistics department in the mines branch at Ottawa; and George Murray, metallurgist of the Canadian Mining and Smelting company at Trail, B.C.

Birth Control Report Is Accepted By Council Of United Church Of Canada

OTTAWA, Oct. 1.—The general council of the United Church of Canada received a sensational committee report approving the principles of "voluntary parenthood" and voluntary sterilization of the mentally unfit, yesterday.

The "voluntary parenthood" and sterilization report was returned after night amendments had been made. The editorial committee changed the expression "birth control" to "voluntary parenthood", believing the new term described better the condition the church wished to see in effect.

REPORT APPROVED
It approved the commission's recommendations favoring establishment of "voluntary parenthood" clinics under public control, and supervision according to standards and regulations prescribed by the provincial department of public health.

Hypnotism Ends Man's Infatuation

ATLANTA, Oct. 1.—Hypnotism was disclosed Wednesday as a material aid in relieving a young married man of his infatuation for a woman not his wife.

Prof. H. W. Martin, of Emory University, told of the incident. He said the man had come to him "highly nervous and irritable," seeking advice on how to break away.

At the man's request, the psychology professor said he hypnotized him, gave him a good lecture, and succeeded in eliminating the moral conflict.

Eggs Hardboiled And Fried For Main Dish

Manners Of The Moment

By MARY E. DAGUE

Picture of a husband looking for his wife.

We feel that there are too many shufflers and fakers looking for their wives waiting at department store entrances for wives who never appear. You've seen them . . . faithful husbands who have been told to "Meet me at 5:30 at the entrance to Taylor and Crockett's." Faithfully they wait, until the doors have been locked and the "Store Closed" sign hung out. And even then they continue to wait, peering hopelessly through the glass pane of the door, expecting, no doubt, to see a wife emerge from a bolt of crotone in the foyer.

Now, of course, if they were at their ordinary decisive best, they'd realize that no woman is going to hang around a department store after the salesgirls have left. They'd see that there was no sense to waiting, and go off and have a sandwich. But some women never seem to have a sense of time, and no dinner is complete without a main course. Doesn't the description make you want to try the recipe? The Rougette cheese in the stuffing gives the dish its distinctive flavor. Six eggs are a nice package. Rougette cheese, 1 cup finely chopped parsley, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon water, 1/2 cup fine bread crumbs, 1/2 cup finely chopped celery (optional).

Hard-boiled the eggs and slice them lengthwise. Remove the yolks and mix them thoroughly with the mashed cheese, onion, celery and parsley.

Refill the egg whites with this mixture and press the halves firmly together. Dip the eggs into the beaten raw egg, to which the water has been added.

Roll in very fine bread crumbs, soaked. Ground crumbs are best, but they're not so fast until broken. This allows two eggs for each serving.

Put in very fine bread crumbs, soaked. Ground crumbs are best, but they're not so fast until broken. This allows two eggs for each serving.

So we think that probably the only thing for them to do is to give up the practice entirely. A husband in a place where the atmosphere tends to sharpen his mental process. They may be able to figure out by himself what to do if his wife doesn't show up.

2.95Slim Hips Necessary For Beautiful Figure

By GLADYS GLAD

If you look back into history you will notice that every age of civilization has had its own particular standard of figure beauty. Different races, too, have had different ideas about what the perfect figure should be. Even today there is no universal standard of figure perfection. Down in South Africa, for instance, it is considered beautiful to have a fairly slender figure, but very prominent hips. While with us, bulky hips are strictly taboo. To be perfect, a figure must not only be slender but harmoniously proportioned as well.

Ginger Rogers, young screen star, claims that the reason bulky hips seem more prominent than any other figure flaw, is because our present-day dress styles emphasize the hips. Ginger, who is one of Hollywood's more graceful dancers, does not lead a sedentary life, by any means, of course. She does a lot of practicing and exercising, and that's probably one reason why her figure remains so slim and her hips so firm and slender. Girls, however, who lead more or less sedentary lives, girls whose daily occupations require that they do a lot of sitting, often acquire dumpy, bulky hips.

DESTROY SYMMETRY

Such hips, of course, definitely destroy the symmetry of the figure. And women often write and ask if I think it necessary for them to wear girdles in order to prevent that unattractive hipline from resulting. It is my personal opinion that a girdle is not an absolute necessity for preventing the hips of a sedentary individual from spreading. But I do think that a properly fitting girdle is a help. Such a girdle, of course, does not really make the hips any slimmer. But it does hold the flesh firm and tends to make them at least seem more slender.

However, while properly-fitting girdles are helpful in keeping the hips from spreading and in making them seem slender, exercise is even more important. You'll find a number of excellent exercises for keeping the hips firm and slender in my "New Figure" booklet. And the following are also most effective:

I lie flat on my back on the floor, arms extended sideways at shoulder level, elbows stiff. Then bring your right leg up, cross over your left, and try to touch your left hand with your right. Relax, and then repeat, trying to touch your right hand with your Stand erect, hands on hips, legs together. Keeping the knees stiff, raise your right leg sideways as high as possible and rest your first position again. Then repeat with the left leg, continuing to raise the right and left legs for 20 counts.

First Aid TO THE Ailing HouseCHIPPED PLUMBING FIXTURES

By Roger B. Whitman

Plumbing fixtures, and especially kitchen sinks, are commonly made of cast iron, coated with a porcelain-like material that is baked on under intense heat. In ordinary use this coating will last indefinitely, but the time may come when the porcelain will chip. This is usually from a very sudden change in temperature by which the iron expands or contracts so abruptly that the porcelain is loosened. This will happen if a hot iron is put on a porcelain-lined drain board. It will also happen if very hot water is run in a sink that is cold, or the other way around. In such cases the chipping is around the opening of the drain pipe.

There is no permanent repair for chipped porcelain—no home method for obtaining the intense heat that is necessary to fuse the porcelain to the iron. But porcelain enamel can be had at a paint or hardware store that will last fairly well if properly applied. The first step is the thorough cleaning of the damaged place; a rubbing with emery cloth or steel wool to remove all blackening from the iron. This must be followed by washing with benzine or some other spot remover to take off every trace of grease and soap. Then, when the damaged place is dry, a thin coat of the porcelain is applied and covered with a cup or otherwise, so that it will remain dry until it has hardened, which may take 24 hours or so. A second thin coat is then put on, and protected in the same way. The enamel dries so slowly that only a thin coat will harden in that time. The job is finished when enough coats have been put on to make thickness of the porcelain the same as the surrounding porcelain. Two or three days should be allowed for the drying of the final coat, during which it must be kept dry. A patch well applied will stand ordinary wear, but will not resist the effects of hot water, soap and scouring powders.

FIREPLACE DAMPERS IN WINTER

Question—In winter when a fireplace is not in use, should the damper be left open or closed?
Answer—Closed and for the same reason that you close a window. If left open a draft will be created and warmed air will be lost up the chimney.

CRACKED CELLAR FLOOR

Question—The concrete floor in my cellar is cracked in many places. Should I take it up before laying a new floor?
Answer—No. Break the old floor into small pieces, and pack and level them. The new concrete will use all the better for having the pieces of the old floor as a foundation.

Those who use liquid polish often make the mistake of not using a nail buffer when the polish is dry. Buffing makes the nail stronger, and if used with a powder polish even over the liquid, gives a fine high-luster finish.

OCT. 4 TO 10 IS FIRE DRIVE WEEK IN CITY

Fire Chief Dutton Asks Co-Operation For Annual Campaign

Citizens, organizations and business firms in the city were urged to unite promptly on programs of fire prevention in a proclamation issued Thursday by Fire Chief Albert Dutton, fixing the week of October 4 to 10 as Fire Prevention Week.

Stressing the fact that fire can be prevented by the exercise of proper care and the use of proper fire prevention measures, the chief insisted that it is the duty of every citizen to aid in all efforts for fire prevention.

BILL IS HIGH

Canada's fire bill for the past 10 years in excess of $300,000,000 from 400,000 fires which occurred during that time and which in addition to the huge monetary loss resulted in the loss of more than 3,000 lives, and injuries in many cases permanently crippling, some 14,000 persons.

As part of the activities for fire prevention the "general campaign" by proclamation has asked that the following matters be looked into:

1.—All dwellings and their surroundings be carefully inspected by their occupants and that conditions likely to promote the spread of fire be removed.

2.—All public buildings, stores, factories, and warehouses be inspected in order to remove fire hazards and maintain safety.

3.—All hotels, theatres, asylums, hospitals and other institutions, buildings be inspected and provisions made for all changes necessary to secure the safety of the occupants in the event of fire.

4.—Fire drills in all schools for the inmates of all institutions and for the employees of all factories and other buildings in order to acquaint the occupants with the most expeditious mode of exit in time of danger.

5.—Special instruction on the subject of fire prevention be given by the teachers and by municipal officials in schools and such appropriate literature may be available to be distributed to the pupils.

6.—Fire Scout leaders give instructions to the troops under their command as to the best fire fighting methods and the use of fire extinguishers.

7.—All legislation and regulations enacted or issued by the Dominion, provincial or municipal authorities dealing with fire prevention be observed and municipal officials that by public cooperation the fire hazard may be most effectively reduced.

8.—All citizens be urged to inspect their own homes and buildings for fire hazards and to remove them if they are found.

HUBBELL'S GIANTS INTO EARLY LEAD

LOOKING THEM OVER

By JACK KELLY
It is the Spectacular That Packs the Paying Fans In If Statistics Mean Anything

"WHAT does the public want in sports?" Fortunes have been made and lost time after time by backing the right or wrong answer. Some have figured the answer was this, while others reckoned it was that. Analysis of attendance figures offers the only safe guide to the paying answer. Daniel J. Ferriss, secretary of the U. S. Amateur Athletic Union, gives some interesting light on the problem from the sports angle. He finds that boxing leads all the A. U. sports with an annual attendance of approximately 15,000,000. Basketball is second with 5,000,000; track and field third with 1,500,000.

However, in the professional field, the picture is quite different for the United States, the only country for which records are available. Baseball and horse racing are neck and neck with an annual attendance of 14,000,000 paying customers each. This figure for baseball includes only organized professional leagues. Wrestling comes next with approximately 7,500,000 fans laying it on the line each year.

Conservative figures for pro wrestling give 10 shows on the average for every week-night, although this figure might easily be quadrupled if all the smaller pro bouts from one side of the country to the other were counted in. The official estimate takes in only the major bouts carried on the press wires. Boxing, on the other hand, cannot claim more than 5,000,000 paid customers annually at the most. This sensational growth of wrestling during the past decade is one of the most interesting developments in pro sports.

In the light of these figures, the answer to "what packs 'em in?" is "the spectacular." Horse racing can be cut out of the question, since its appeal unfortunately still remains a guessing appeal. Owing to the fact that hockey is played in only a small section of the United States, it cannot be fairly compared with other sports for drawing power in the light of the spectacular. It can be no doubt, however, that with the rapid spread of artificial ice plants, it will soon rank among the Big Four monied sports.

Beats of Grid Games
UNITED STATES football attendance figures must be taken with a grain of salt, since each college considers huge attendances good publicity. They admittedly count in all non-payers such as policemen, help, etc., and count them each time they go through the turnstiles. Some places have even been charged with spinning the turnstiles by hand to run up a total that would make the headlines. There are approximately 3,500 college football games each year in the U. S. and conservative estimates place the total paid attendance at not more than 16,000,000, which is 5,000 per game.

However, even in the amateur field, the appeal of the spectacular is still the big drawing card. Football and boxing are the most sensational of sports—although grave suspicions have repeatedly been cast on the purity of the former. Amateur wrestling does not compete with amateur boxing since it has not adopted the rip-roaring professional rules.

Australian Sport Records
OWING to its remoteness, Australia's accomplishments in sports would be generally overlooked as the parade goes by year after year, yet the Aussies are one of the greatest sporting people in the world, and some of the records they have established are amazing. Horse racing is perhaps their greatest sport. To them they have made such major contributions as the totalizer, the starting wheel and the skull cap for jockeys. Cricket, soccer and Australian football are their other big sports.

On January 3, 1933, an all-time record for attendance at a cricket match was set in Melbourne, when England and Australia drew 68,180 paid admissions. The all-time cricket "take" record, however, was set at Sydney in 1928, when the England-Australia match brought $31,038 rolling through the ticket windows.

In ratio to population, the Victorian Football League which has 11 teams in Melbourne and one in Geelong, draws a larger attendance than any other sport anywhere. The season lasts 18 weeks and the total attendance is around 1,700,000 annually. Australia's adult population is approximately 3,600,000 and the country's annual paid attendance at all sports events is over 30,000,000. That means that on the average every Australian attends 10.5 sport events each year. Similar figures are not available for Canada, but it would be surprising if they were even half as good.

Yankee Team Falls Apart To Lose 6-1

By ALAN COULD

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Under circumstances Wednesday that made their immediate prospects look as completely soggy as the rain-drenched diamond, the Yankees dropped the first decision to the mud-running Giants and their screwball ace, Carl Owen Hubbell, in the opening game of New York's baseball civil war for the world championship.

The final score was 6-1 and the superiority of the National League champions as convincing at the finish of a game that was accompanied by steady rain through the last seven innings, that a freeze rating in mid-Terry's club was under way last night.

BEAT TO PICKS
After seven hard-fought innings, with Hubbell shading big Yankee hitting only one homer, a brilliant pitching duel, the Yankees produced four runs for the National League champions in the eighth inning.

The defeat spoiled the Yankees' conquest of a straight world series conquest. After bowing to the Cards and Red Alexander in the first game of the 1929 series, they whipped the Pirates four straight in 1927, took four in a row from the Cards in 1928 and repeated the performance against the Cubs in 1932.

SEIKIRI HOMERS
Hubbell was prevented from registering a shutout by Canadian George Selkirk's home run into the upper right field stand in the third inning, a clutch that looked large on the scoreboard but was effected by Dick Bartlett's blast into the upper left field stand in the fourth.

The stage was set for this crucial episode after Cronk Crockett doubled down the left-field line and Hubbell fumbled left fielder and pitcher, but, having fumbled so far and third, with none out, and a 2-1 margin to protect.

PASSED UP TRIPLE
In a race for chance, it seemed for Manager Bille to attempt a triple killing, with Crockett yards off base and trying desperately to scramble back through the mud. But it would have been time and as he explained afterward, Terry decided not to risk leaving the wet field.

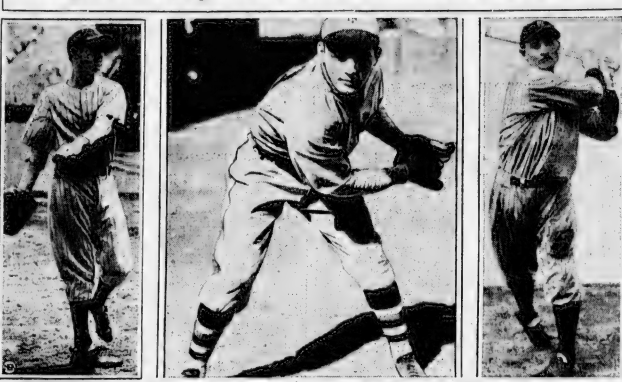

Hubbell hit Lou Gehrig on the shoulder with a pitched ball but Bille Dickey dragged to Terry to break the tie.

The pitching duel now is difficult, with the Giants, who will send Hal Schumacher and his sister ball in quest of a second victory tomorrow. To oppose the pitcher of Danville, N.Y., Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees, picked his outpitcher star, Vernon "Goody" Gimes, who has been wild but otherwise effective and speedy in his last two starts.

ATTENDANCE FELL
The total paid attendance of 3919 fell approximately 1200 short of the capacity of the Polo grounds, but it was all that could be expected under the discouraging circumstances. Gate receipts totaled $17,177, about $30,000 more of season figures.

For five innings it was a standstill, with the fast ball pitching of Hubbell and the mud running of Gimes, but in the sixth inning, when Hubbell was hit by a line drive, the Yankees broke through. Then came the Yankees blow to remove all question about the outcome. Bartlett, Terry and Giff each contributed two hits to the Giants' attack, which needed a total of nine hits to win the game.

May Or May Not Be Tomorrow's Stars

A trio of stars who may or may not be future players in the second game of the world series—baseball's hot new one on at Danville, Gimes of New York. The left is Vernon "Goody" Gimes who opposes Hal Schumacher, centre on the mound. Gimes is Yankee big league star, while Schumacher with his sinister ball is the moundman whom Terry figures will stop even mudrunners. Right, the right-hander Jake Powell, who the fans named out three hits off Hubbell.

Grid Rumbblings Of Discontent Are Still Heard

TORONTO, Oct. 1.—Rumbblings of discontent continued Wednesday among the players of the Big Four rugby football teams. A definite move was formulated in an effort to set aside the ruling by the board of governors of the Canadian Rugby Union, barring 11 United States players from the league.

Bringing aside the dictum of Bill Topp, president of the C.R.U., that "there will be no appeal" officials of the Ottawa and Montreal clubs wired the president to call a special meeting of the union executive for the purpose of re-opening the question. Meanwhile officials of the other two clubs, Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tigers, had not indicated their attitude on reconsideration.

A frame that came close to breaking up the game. O'Leary Hubbell's masterful performance in the rain, his control of the slippery horizontal, and his resourcefulness in balling all of the Yankee mudrunners except Al Powell, justified the things they have been saying in advance about the shoddy outpitcher.

POWELL GOT THREE
Mixing his screwball with a sweeping curve that had many a Yankee bending his back trying to hit him, Powell struck out eight Yankees. He yielded seven hits, of which Powell, the former Washington pitcher, collected three with rife-shotted drives but he did not score.

The big Canadian—he was born in Hamilton, Ont., and spent the first half dozen years of his life in the States—was left-handed and even pitched to him in a world series classic and sent it screaming straight into the stands.

LOOSED UNBEATABLE
Hubbell, striking out five batters in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings, looked unbeatable through the middle stages of the game. When he fanned Dimaggio on a screwball and Gehrig on a slow curve, in the sixth, the crowd gave King Carl the biggest ovation of the game.

"It took the big defensive 'break' of the game, however, when Hubbell safely past the critical eighth-inning attempt on the Yankees to break through. Then came the Yankees blow to remove all question about the outcome. Bartlett, Terry and Giff each contributed two hits to the Giants' attack, which needed a total of nine hits to win the game.

Hi-Grads Prep For Clash Against Bronks Saturday

Training steadily for the past week, Coach Dick Speer's Hi-Grads will be in the best of condition when they meet Carl Cronin's Calgary Bronks at Renfrew Park this Saturday afternoon. The game will get under way at 3:00 o'clock.

As a result of early darkness, the Hi-Grads have been drilling out at the Arena for the past few evenings, and their practice sessions have proven more than satisfactory. There is also a sprinkling of new talent on the team, or at least showing up for practice, and whether or not they will be in action is not definite.

Hi-Grads, beaten by Varsity last Saturday, are expected to play much better against the Bronks. While Bronks are heavy favorites, the local aggregation is expected to give a running battle. Bronks, it must be remembered, are the hunkies who defeated Regina's Roughriders a week ago. They are a powerful aggregation and to send them in action will be a treat for local players.

It will be the only appearance of the Bronks in Edmonton this season.

Work to arrange for the game at Renfrew Park is already progressing, and is expected to be completed within the next day or so.

TORONTO, Oct. 1.—Fifteen strong, Vancouver North Shore Indians advanced on Toronto last night convinced they could add a scalp to Orillia Terriers to their impressive win string and return to the western coast with the Shuswap emblematic of Canadian senior lacrosse supremacy.

The Braves from the Kamloops tribe of Vancouver harbor's North Shore, accompanied by six former Brantford Ont. six nations reserve players, will arrive today. Terriers must move out of their home town 70 miles north of here until the day the series opens.

Giant Squad Happy While Yanks Brood

By PAUL MICHELOS

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Carl Hubbell, old "Chief Rained in the Face" himself, grinned and chuckled like a schoolboy as his happy, mud-splattered Giant mates showered him with congratulations for tossing mud in the eyes of the feasting Yankees.

First in the clubhouse, outstaring all his pals over the long quiet from the diamond, the screwball genius from Meeker, Okla., hesitated by the doorway to act as "Chief Greeter."

"Did I clean the bases for you in sloppy weather?" he shouted as his pals rushed him.

"Clean 'em!" the Giants chorused. "You dry cleaned 'em, especially in the eighth inning."

Reporters came to the great star with questions. Bill Terry came over.

TERRY ALSO SLOPPY
"So, what is he?" going on around here?" he yelled.

"Oh, it's me. Well, fellows let's follow in to talk to. What a ball game he pitched! I'd like to hold him a year in dry or wet weather."

Through the partition separating the Yankees and Giants nothing could be heard from the enemy camp as Hubbell quietly answered the questions.

Why I threw a screw ball. Only one pitch got away from me—the one I hit Gehrig with. I flipped just as I let her go. Selkirk? I threw him a screw ball, too, but it was a little too high and you know what happened to it. Powell was tough. I couldn't seem to get him out. I gave him the works, too. No. 1 didn't expect a shutout anyway."

TERRY'S KNEE DAD
As Terry limped around, displaying his leg left knee that started to swell like a balloon, he announced Hal Schumacher would pitch the second game against Terry. "I think Hubbell take care of them, too," predicted the Giant boss, "but we're not knowing about today's game. Hubbell was greater in the clutch and we got the one big break of the game in the eighth when he forced Dimaggio to hit into a double play."

"You had time to nab Cronin for a triple play. Why didn't you try for it?" Terry was asked.

"Well, you the third I was a little too tickled. Anyway, we couldn't take a chance in throwing the ball away."

ATHABASCA FINDS ITS FEET AFTER 44 YEARS PROSPECTING

Geologists Survey 10,000 Square Miles

Total of 10,000 square miles in the Talbot river country, along the south shore of Great Slave lake were surveyed by Dr. Fenwick Henderson, of the dominion geologists who arrived here in a Canadian Airways airplane from the north piloted by Matt Barry.

The geologist reported finding "one large belt of sediments favorable to prospecting." He was accompanied by seven university students who acted as his assistants.

ASSESSMENT WORK RUSHED

Rush to complete assessment work before the freeze-up was underway in the Yellowknife river area, according to a recent report issued by the mining recorder at Fort Smith.

The Burwash Yellowknife company is reported to have relocated the vein and the crew is now doing drifting work. Exploration work on many of the properties has proved very encouraging and this, it is expected, will lead to greater development work next year. A moderately high gold assay reported from a field where previous results showed values only in quartz.

The following companies and syndicates are at present in the Yellowknife and Great Slave Lake mining divisions: Consolidated Mining and Smelting Corporation, Burwash Yellowknife Mines, Ventures Limited, Connell Exploration, Sun Bear Mines, A.S. Syndicate, A. E. Syndicate, and B. and M. Syndicate. Groups of claims have also been staked by Mr. Desmond Kidd, Christopher Riley, L. A. Thorne, E. McQueen, G. Buffum, and E. R. Dobell.

300-Foot Vein At Yellowknife Visible

Exploration of the new visible gold discovery on the Giant group of Yellowknife Gold Mines, Limited, north shore of Great Slave lake indicates a present length of about 300 feet and the results are most favorable. Officials of the company announced recently.

Where exposed the vein width varied from three to four inches to about one foot and the most recent written report received states that a good working vein width appears to be developing, consisting of quartz veinslets up to two feet wide in places, and heavy schist.

Boom Starts When Gold Discovered in Granite Formation

GOLDFIELD, Sask. Oct. 1.—Prospecting for gold and silver minerals, staking and recording claims, and other work has been going on in the Lake Athabasca region since before the turn of the century, but in spite of several reported strikes and a few rushes into the area it is only within the past two years since the summer of 1934 that any large scale development work has been carried on.

A geological survey party explored the south shore of the lake in 1935 and the north shore in the following year. Three or four other survey parties have, from time to time, examined the area from a geological standpoint, but most of the reports submitted by them have indicated that there was little of the gold to be found in the granite hills stretching for many miles back from the lake. Formations were favorable and the district had mineral possibilities, but there was little likelihood of this particular section of the pre-Cambrian shield ever proving of any commercial importance.

The first prospectors, as far as is known, to visit the area were certain Yukon stamperers who made a short cut across the Canadian to the Yukon, lost their way or gave up, and settled on the shore of the lake to make a living, hunting, fishing and prospecting. During their wanderings following their trail they made small finds, mostly of gold, which they staked and recorded. But, unlike interest anyone in their properties, they were in time forgotten.

PICHE MADE FINDS

For about ten years there was no mineral activity but one of the reported finds interested a man named Piche who came in in 1910 and prospected a large section of the country east of Fond du Lac. He went out in the fall and returned in 1912 with his son and a crew, machinery and sufficient capital to finance investigations for two years. He established a camp north of Pine Island but his findings were only small showings of sulphides in a sedimentary zone, so after two years' work he went west to Chipewyan.

It was on Potato Island, just a short distance from Chipewyan, that his son was blown up in an explosion. It has been assumed that the younger Piche was discouraged at the lack of success of the enterprise and committed suicide. The tragedy climaxed Piche's investigations and he withdrew from the district.

Greatly exaggerated reports of his findings, however, along with news of a new silver strike near Fond du Lac, started a rush in March, 1915, which continued well into the summer. Aside from the ore samples which had helped start the rush, nothing of importance was located. Huge expanses of rock were staked and examined but results were negligible and most of the stamperers withdrew before fall.

BUILT THREE CAMPS

With the 1915 rush came a Frenchman named Dardier, a man about whom little was known but who was supposed to have been prospecting for Mond Nickel. Owners of extensive nickel properties all over the world. He returned the next year with a crew of about thirty men, as far as is ascertained, and with hundreds of tons of drilling equipment, machinery, food and supplies. He established three camps, the main one being near Dardier Island very close to the scene of Piche's Pine Island workings. Dardier's operations continued over the next year and a half.

proved the existence of nickel deposits, but for an apparent reason and without warning Dardier disappeared and the camps were closed. Everything was left just as it was, even to food and personal belongings. The actual commercial value of his findings has never been revealed.

ROAD IS BUILT

Prospecting still went on during the ensuing years but there was no find of importance until 1929 when Dominion Explorers Limited found suitable showings near Asak Lake, north and east of Fond du Lac. In a flurry of optimism and excitement they built a road from Fond du Lac to the lake and hauled machinery and supplies over it to the camp. A thorough campaign of exploration was instituted but their findings were of no importance. Copper and nickel values were practically worthless. They found gold values in chalcopirite and porphyry with dark basic rock intrusives with quartzose sediments, but it was only a short time until they gave up and withdrew from the field.

At this time a rush was in progress in Beaverlodge, the site of an important fish camp was staked. Nothing came of it, however, until 1934 when the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company entered the field and staked a group of claims.

With the entry of Consolidated into the field, a new era was started, not only in the Goldfields district, but also throughout the entire pre-Cambrian area. For the first time in Canadian mining history, gold has been located in large quantities, not only in quartz veins and stringers, but also in granite, something absolutely unheard of up until this time. This fact, proving a decided mining boom, has progressed at the time, aroused tremendous interest throughout Canada. Large sections of this same pre-Cambrian shield, composed of similar granite formations, have been practically ignored because of the belief that gold was never found closely associated with granite.

SHAFTS ARE SUNK

At the Consolidated property, however, preliminary investigations had warranted starting first one shaft and then another within a year of the first staking and underground work went ahead rapidly. More and more ground was acquired and all the while other companies were becoming interested. Finally all the ground near the C.M. and S. find had been staked and one other large company and about a dozen smaller concerns had commenced operations.

The area has not yet been proved. There is still room for doubt as to just what the future holds. But ever since the first step was taken, in 1934, every other step has been forward. The manifold difficulties have been met and overcome or are now being overcome. And while the field may yet turn out to be a disappointment, the opinions of intelligent and uninterested geologists and mining men who have made a close examination of the area, are unanimous in their prophesies that Beaverlodge will some day be the greatest gold producing region in Canada.

Extensive though Canadian mining operations have been, this country is only upon the threshold of its mineral development.

Abundant by nature with a land rich in mineral resources, and with abundant water-power for their development, Canada possesses the opportunity of becoming one of the wealthiest nations in the world.

Much of the success of Canada's mining activity has been due to electric power—and by manufacturing, in Canada, the equipment for the utilization, as well as the generation of electric power. Canadian General Electric has been privileged to play a large part in opening up the almost limitless treasures of Canadian mines.

Vic Horner Brings New Streamline Bus For Local Service

It is fitting that the first bus introduced into the new stream-lined, forward-control bus by Edmonton should be the latest bus company.

The development of the new bus, operated by Vic Horner, commenced serving the public in 1921. They operate four buses from Edmonton to Barrhead, a distance of 85 miles, providing to all the intermediate points a daily service that permits them coming into the city and back in one day.

This silver speedster of the road, long and sleek in its beauty, boasts the utmost in safety features, being constructed entirely of steel.

Months were spent in planning the new bus. Actually, three months were required to complete the work once the plans were sketched. The body was built in Alberta—at the Sunnyside Auto Body Works, Calgary, and was supervised throughout by Vic Horner who traveled to the southern city practically every week to keep posted on its progress.

It features air conditioning—Dunlopillo cushion seats, the new type of seats without any springs. It is insulated throughout. Seats are of recliner type and adjustable. Individual seat lighting and exceptional body and head room are a big feature of the interior construction. It is finished in silver with royal blue and gold trim.

SEATON DRIVES MILLION MILES FOR ARROW

William Seaton, senior driver with the Northern Rapid Transit Ltd., has an enviable record.

He has been with the firm since its inauguration some 15 years ago, driving approximately 200 miles every day of these years. In all those miles of travel, only one very slight accident has happened while he has been at the wheel of a bus.

This was attributed not to any carelessness on his part, but on the part of mechanics that had failed to tighten certain bolts properly.

It is estimated that Seaton has piloted at the wheel at least one million miles and with practically a perfect record.

Quints For First Time Have Boys For Playmates

CALLANDER, Ont., Oct. 1.—The Dionne quintuplets played with boys for the first time yesterday. The quintuplets had better not start their playmates over their brothers, ten-year-old Ernest and Daniel, aged four.

They had not seen them since the twins were moved to the nursery from their home, September 1934. Ernest took the visit calmly and was content to watch his fellow quintuplets from a distance. Daniel got right down on the floor to frolic with them and some mechanical boys caught Ernest's interest and all seven were playing together.

Then they sat around a table and Ernest tried to show his sisters how to write. Oliva Dionne, father of the family, gathered up the pieces of paper with the quintuplets' scribbles and is keeping them as souvenirs.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE. After Henry VIII's death some time ago, the young king, Edward VI, died. His mother, Jane Grey, was crowned queen. She was only nine years old. She was a very brave and clever girl. She was the daughter of a nobleman. She was the daughter of a nobleman. She was the daughter of a nobleman.

Warwick met Lady Jane Grey in the corridor as she entered from the gate to the dining room. "Where do you go?" he asked. "Home, my lord," she replied. "That is not possible," said Warwick.

"By what right do you speak?" demanded the girl. "The King has said I may go."

"The King is a sick boy. I can have but one concern with him. My physicians tell me that your presence here in the palace will speed his recovery. So you will stay."

"His strategy was revealed the following day when, in response to his dinner, Warwick, Henry Grey, Duke of Suffolk, and his wife, Elizabeth, arrived at the palace. Warwick, said Warwick, with the brusque directness of the soldier he pulled himself upon his knees. "I ask your consent to the loss of my lord, who are you?" "Ask me more of Warwick's son," replied Dudley. "Don't mention his name again," said the girl, "and I will be his father. I will marry him!"

"If you will marry him, I will marry you," replied Dudley. "If you will marry him, I will marry you," replied Dudley. "If you will marry him, I will marry you," replied Dudley.

"My lord, who are you?" "Ask me more of Warwick's son," replied Dudley. "Don't mention his name again," said the girl, "and I will be his father. I will marry him!"

"If you will marry him, I will marry you," replied Dudley. "If you will marry him, I will marry you," replied Dudley. "If you will marry him, I will marry you," replied Dudley.

pool" sterned Jane. "My lord Warwick has arranged this for some purpose of his own."

"You will obey your parents in this," interposed Warwick, sternly. "I will not," cried Jane. "The betrothal will take place tomorrow at noon," said Warwick, inexorably. "All the necessary arrangements have been made."

"I will not! I will not! I will not!" she broke into a torrent of tears. "She tried to flee that night. Everywhere she encountered sentinels. But half-way down the long corridor one of them dozed, and past him she slipped."

"I was running away. Warwick wants me to marry his son," said Jane, indignantly. "I'll never marry him!"

"Why haven't they told Warwick?" asked Dudley. "How do you know?" they asked. "Well," stammered Dudley, "I saw Warwick's son."

"The betrothal was arranged, just as Warwick had planned. Grey was not further consulted. Lord Guildford Dudley, finally admitted to his father's presence and appointed to Warwick's place, did not notice the fact that he knew and already loved Jane Grey."

"Only the King proved refractory. He was asleep in his huge bed when Warwick entered and shook him, not too gently."

"You must arouse yourself, Your Majesty, to sign your name to a deed naming Lady Jane Grey as your second wife!"

"I'll tell them what you've done!" shrieked Edward. "I'll tell them!" he cried. "I'll tell them!" he cried. "I'll tell them!" he cried.

TRANS-PACIFIC FLIGHT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

KAY DUNN, pretty airplane stewardess, falls in love with TED KILPATRICK, veteran pilot who flies the Trans-Pacific route.

Ted has two interests in life—his job and DICKIE, his adopted son. He is a very busy man. He is married, but his wife is in a home for "dumb" and "dull" people. He does not agree, though, with Ted's theories that marriage, to be successful, must be planned extensively, just as a plane flight. She is a realist, because her husband's wife-hoarding must be carried on in the same way, with charts and instruments.

Kay gives a party one night and Ted, instead of staying, instead of remaining with the guests, goes to his room. To punish him, Kay impulsively decides to take the morning plane to Honolulu.

Once on board, she begins to regret her impetuosity. In Honolulu, Kay learns there is an outbreak of spinal meningitis at Midway and that Ted is now a plane bringing serum.

HOW DO YOU WRITE THE STORY?

CHAPTER XXII

The Mariner turned Pearl Harbor at Honolulu toward the east, circling over the throat of the bay, gathered to witness its arrival. All day in newspapers they had read little else but the hourly log of this race against death. On the Midway Islands two more victims had gone down with spinal meningitis.

Ted looked tired when he came down the gangplank. For he had not slept much on the flight from the mainland. Under his orders, refueling began at once. He was to fly on to Midway, and hoped to reach there before midnight with the needed serum.

He did not try to find Kay, or ask for news of her. He was on the ground that he seemed to have forgotten her presence in Hawaii. There was not a minute to lose with men facing death on the coral atoll in the sweltering tropic night.

But Kay was not at the port when the Mariner arrived. She had spent the morning following up clues concerning the activities of Iliak and the two men who might be her accomplices in a plot to steal the serum of Ted's airplane.

Kay had caught sight of Iliak only once. The day was sunny, riving from the city office of the Trans-Pacific Airways to a taxi. In another car, Kay followed the taxi to the airport, where the Mariner now lay, its silver wings shining in the midday sun.

Iliak left the taxi heavily veiled, and disappeared in the throng about the docks. Kay lost her then, in the mob that milled back and forth.

Meanwhile the Mariner was turned up rapidly for the night. After less than an hour in port the great flying boat headed out again over the Pacific.

Thirty minutes out Ted had the engine working perfectly. The four 800 horsepower engines roared. The ship was being controlled and flown without the aid of a human hand.

The delicate instrument had succeeded in all the tests to which it had been subjected on this run. Ted's dream seemed realized.

He came out of the chart room, his eyes beaming with pride. He wanted to tell the passengers about it.

But suddenly he stopped short, and looked nervously at the face he saw in one of the passenger compartments. It was Iliak, who was swathed in white and turbaned as usual. At the last minute she had changed passage to Manila.

You are surprised to see me, no," she said. Her face was a mask of gloom.

Ted laughed. "There are no more surprises in my life," he said. He looked at the other passenger, his eyes roving over each of them. He had been in the cockpit when they came on, and had not seen them before. There was the English explorer, who carried a small hooded falcon on his wrist. There were the wiles of two army officers, stationed in Manila. There was a Chinese merchant in silk whom Ted knew. He smiled with extreme courtesy when his eyes met Ted's.

There was a young man in sports clothes whom Ted recognized as a polo player bound for an international match in Shanghai. There was a woman heavily veiled in black. There was the naval surgeon on the way to Midway with the meningitis serum. A missionary in clerical coat and an American traveling salesman were talking about the plumbing on the island of Guam.

Iliak's white hand slipped out from the folds of her gown and gripped Ted's. He roared at her side in the aisle.

"Do you think there will be any danger," she asked with her modulated accent, of the passengers taking this dreaded, spiral trip?"

"No," she struggled with the word. "Meningitis," Ted supplied, smiling. "No, there's no danger. We'll land in this lagoon. A launch will come out for the serum and the surgeon, and then we'll go on to Wake Island. You won't even touch Midway."

"I am glad," she said. "But why are you not flying the plane?"

Ted said proudly, "The gyropilot is flying the ship."

"I know not these machines," she said, "but I see nothing that would tend to me on the voyage?"

Ted laughed. "Not on your life! It's a deep dark secret."

Iliak's hand moved, surprised. "They are a secret! A government secret, I presume?"

Ted smiled. "You have really nothing to see. You wouldn't understand the instrument. I will be glad to show it to all of you—but one at a time! You can stand in the chart room and see it through the glass."

Iliak got up and followed him down the aisle.

For a long time she peered through the glass at the delicate mechanism of the gyropilot.

"But I see nothing," she said. "Can't I go into the cockpit?"

Iliak would see how the work, what makes her fly without the human hand.

Ted hesitated, then turned to her, frowning. "It's against rules for passengers to go on the bridge," he said. "I'm sorry."

Iliak smiled. "Oh, an ocean liner it is the same! Nobody can go on the bridge except—" she smiled up at him in her languid manner. "The captain's friend!"

Iliak turned on him with distinguished regard. She stood easily off the chart room.

"Very well," she said. "Iliak is bored. Iliak will sleep."

She lay over in her chair and closed her eyes. Over that Oriental face came the look of utter repose. It was a grand, ineffable calm.

They were flying above the clouds now, and only occasionally did the passengers catch a fleeting glimpse of the ocean. Toward eight, however, they passed over French Frigate Shoals. All the passengers roared long enough to see the surf, beating against the lonely shore in the world-uninhabited, barren reefs in plain ocean.

Far down they could make out the outline of the Mariner that had been forced down. It lay safely moored inside the lagoon and after further repairs would take to air again.

Ted came back to the passengers long enough to explain that the Mariner in a test, had got off the water in seconds in a run of less than 2,000 feet, carrying a useful load of 25,000 pounds. A forced sea landing is only an incident," he said.

The sister ships exchanged radio greetings and this flying boat passed on toward the Midway group several hours further to the west.

ALL SIX MEN OF THE GANG WERE ON DUTY NOW. THE GYROPLOT WAS RELIEVED FROM DUTY AND TED STAYED AT THE CAPTAIN'S POST WITH THE NAVIGATION OFFICER.

The weather was splendid and the heavy rain poured over the giant wheels and the hull. The radio officer had his strained white face over the radio direction finder.

Ted was standing in the weather chart when the door of the chart room opened slowly behind him. The woman in black veils came in and closed the door behind her. Before Ted could turn to intervene she had lifted the veils from her face.

"Kay!" he said. He stared at his wife, who had appeared somehow on the ship.
